Would you like boost your leadership and coaching capabilities?

For many of us the new norm is having less time, experiencing increased responsibility, and feeling like we are just surviving.

Instead of being stuck in habits, would you like to develop personal mastery by understanding what drives your behaviour?

From here you can create deep personal and professional shifts.

Join us for a profound learning experience that will allow you to:

- Engage with a powerful, highly effective approach to leading and coaching, capable of generating deep positive change
- Greatly increase your own ability and capacity for masterful leading, living and action
- Lead and coach authentically with greater influence and impact
- Develop more constructive and mutually fulfilling relationships in both your personal and professional life

The Ontological approach is an extraordinarily powerful methodology for generating real change at the individual, team and organisational level. It is highly effective because it is based on a new practical understanding of the power of language, moods and conversations for sustainable behavioural and cultural change.

The Ontological approach focuses on our Way of Being, which is a dynamic interrelationship between three areas of human existence – language, emotions and body. Way of Being contains our often deep-seated perceptions and attitudes and is the underlying driver of our behaviour and communication. Ontological coaching skills have a holistic orientation that respectfully generates learning in all three areas of language, emotions and body as the catalyst for substantive and sustainable change.

WAY OF BEING

“Theory without practice is foolish, practice without theory is dangerous.”
